"Nell Gwynne" a beautiful romantic comedy in four acts will be presented at the Lyric Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings of this week by the popular Gardner-Vincent Stock Co. As Miss Vincent was the understudy for Henrietta Crossman, the great American actress, (who toured the largest cities in this country a few years ago in this production,) has often played the title role, the patrons of the Lyric are assured of one of the best performances yet given by the Gardner-Vincent Co. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week "In Old New Hampshire," a pastoral comedy, in five acts, will be given in all its entirety. Special scenery will be used and the play will be staged correctly in every detail.

Ceremonies extending over two days marked the funeral services of the late Rev. Father Alexis G. Toth one of the founders of the Russian church in this country, and who was instrumental in the building of the Russian monastery and orphanage at South Canaan, this country, an account of whose death at Wilkes-Barre on Friday last was published in Wednesday's paper. After he died, continual services were kept up at his church until Saturday afternoon, when the body was placed in state at the church, remaining until morning, during a service known as "Parastas" until 7 o'clock when the remains were removed to the hearse. The procession then started to the Lehigh Valley station, whence a special Delaware and Hudson train brought the funeral party together with about six hundred parishioners to South Canaan. At South Canaan station the procession again formed with Bishop Platon at the head, and the four mile walk to the monastery begun. At the monastery chapel where Bishop Platon was the celebrant, the pontifical liturgy was celebrated. This ceremony lasted from 12:30 until 3 p. m. At the grave there were further ceremonies, and it was not until 5 p. m. that the body was lowered to its last resting place. Priests acted as pall bearers throughout the entire ceremony. Clergymen from all sections of the East and as far West as Minneapolis, attended and participated in the services.

RICH SIBERIAN CROPS.

No Religion More Capable of Producing Human Food.

Though the name of Siberia is still popularly accepted as a synonym for all that is Arctic and sterile, says the London Globe, it is becoming clearer every year that few regions of the earth are more capable of producing immense stores of human food. This year, in particular, when the crops over much of European Russia have failed, the richness of the Siberian lands has been extremely conspicuous, and there is surplus produce in vast abundance, the only difficulty being the inadequate means of transport. With a virgin soil and a far more active and independent Russian population than is to be found in most parts of Russia itself, there is no doubt that a great agricultural future should await this enormous region.

Another Artificial Fertilizer.

The success attained in Norway by the electrothermic process for the fixation of atmospheric nitrogen in the form of nitric acid, which is afterward converted into calcium nitrate and used as a fertilizer in place of Chile saltpetre, has been followed by the development of another method of fixing atmospheric nitrogen by passing it over heated calcium carbide. The product is called cyanamid—in the market "nitrolim"—and experiment shows that when placed in the soil it decomposes and furnishes nitrogen to plants. At present cyanamid is produced on an industrial scale at Odda in Norway, at Piano d'Orta in Italy, at Notre Dame de Briancon in France, at Westergeln and Brühl in Germany, and large plants are being established at Almisa in Austria-Hungary, and at Niagara Falls in Canada.

A Lightless Lighthouse.

On a sunken reef 350 feet distant from Stormy Lighthouse is a remarkable beacon which warns mariners with the help of a light which is only apparent. The beacon is a cone of cast-iron plates, surmounted with a lantern containing a glass prism. The prism derives its light from reflecting the rays emitted from the lighthouse, and the optical delusion is marvellous. Mariners naturally suppose that there is a lighted lamp on the beacon itself, and many of them will not believe otherwise. But the object of the beacon is attained when the navigator sees the reflected light, which indicates the perilous rock below. This beacon has been in use more than half a century, and since it was fixed in position others have been placed in other neighborhoods to make clear points of danger.—Technical World.

His Pedigree.

The calf, which Gideon King had taken the summer resident to see, surveyed his owner and the stranger with a wary eye. "Er—what breed is your calf?" asked the visitor.

Mr. King remove a wisp of straw from his mouth and said:

"That critter's father gored a justice of the peace, knocked lightning-rod agent end over end, and lifted a tramp over a picket fence; and as for his mother, she chased the whole Banbury Brass Band out o' town last Fourth o' July. If that ain't breed enough to pay six dollars for, you can leave him be. I'm not pressing him on anybody."

Stone Eaters.

Sir James Ross in the course of his travels noted a curious fact with regard to the penguin, namely the habit of swallowing stones. In one specimen he found ten pounds weight of quartz, granite and trap. Other animals, reptiles, fishes and mammals exhibit the same strange fancy. In a paper contributed to the proceedings of the Bristol Naturalists' Society, W. H. Wicks has collected a number of facts connected with such stomach stones. The fact noted by Mr. Wicks that the pebbles are usually white quartz is interesting, but does not appear to throw any light on the strange habit.

For the Teeth.

Tartar is a deposit arising from an unwholesome stomach, and if not attended to will loosen the teeth and cause them to give trouble; it is best to let the dentist remove it; but it may be kept from collecting to any great extent by the use of powdered pumice stone and lemon juice. Orange sticks can be had at trifling cost at the drug store. Dip the stick into the lemon juice, then into the pumice, and rub over the spots until removed. Pumice should be used but seldom on the teeth, and never on the teeth of children.

OIL CAPTURES WILD GEESSE.

Feathers Are Clogged and Men Slez Helpless Flock.

Mount Vernon, Ill.—A party returning from a hunt on the Wabash River report the capture of a flock of wild geese in a peculiar manner. The geese alighted in a quiet cove which was heavily coated with oil from the Illinois fields, and the feathers of the birds became heavily impregnated. They attempted to fly, but their efforts were fruitless and twenty-five birds were captured.

Power and Preparation.

The richer a nature the harder and slower its self-preparation and development. Patient preparation is permanent power. In an age that lacks composure men are apt to mature too quickly and decay too soon. Reserved power should be greater than spent. By self-preparation deposit each day for future drafts, and then you are not apt to overcheck your account.—Rev. C. S. Patton, Presbyterian.

BUSINESS MEN'S ANNUAL BANQUET

The Business Men's Association Banquet at Hotel Heumann—A Feast of Reason and Flow of Soul—What the Banqueters Ate and the Speakers Said.

The Honesdale Business Men's Association held their annual banquet at Hotel Heumann on Tuesday evening, May 11th. The affair proved most successful and enjoyable, much of the success being due to the efficiency of the committee in charge, Frank Schuerholz, N. B. Spencer and William Penwarden. The large dining room presented a very beautiful appearance. The dining hall and tables were profusely decorated with palms and ferns, and at each person's place was placed a red carnation. The music during the evening was furnished by O'Brien's orchestra.

Proprietor Heumann had prepared the following menu for the banquet.

After the supper was finished, N. B. Spencer, secretary of the organization, after a brief address, happily introduced Burgess Hon. John Kubbach, who expressed his pleasure at meeting with such a gathering of our citizens, and congratulated the business men of the Association upon their success. He claimed that the business man does more for his country than anyone else, he being practically "the man behind the gun." Every other class needs his help and assistance and upon him the prosperity of the country depends. The next speaker was State organizer, R. W. Rittenhouse, of Scranton. He recalled the fact that years ago he was called to Honesdale to assist in the organization of a Business Men's Association, and on arriving here was greeted by twelve discouraged individuals who wanted to postpone the business, but after a talk with them he persuaded them to go ahead with the work. A number of the associations in the country which were organized in this manner, now have large memberships. In our large cities, some of the organizations whose admission fee was originally one dollar have increased the charge to fifty dollars, and a person to get in must be of approved character. An association can accomplish nothing beneficial if all do not do their duty. All members ideas cannot be alike, but they should get together and think alike. There never was a man in business yet, but could learn something, especially from an organization of this kind, and the men who help make a good organization are the men who work hand in hand. Members should attend their regular meetings. In some towns a business men's meeting would empty the show houses. Work for the interests of your organization. Everybody sees benefits in organizing—men like Mitchell and railroad men and manufacturers. The best organization in the world is that of the Locomotive Engineers, and the only recognition they ever secured was through co-operation. Then he urged the members to get together, attend their meetings, and send delegates to the next state convention. It will repay the effort put forth. The representatives will come home with new ideas, and work with renewed vigor for your interests.

W. W. Wood, who was next introduced, made a few pertinent remarks, after which the Rev. Dr. W. F. Hopp, gave a very pleasing address in which he emphasized the advantages accruing from men being united in every phase of life's activities. He dwelt forcibly upon the beauty of helping each other in business, and advocated very earnestly the observance of Sunday as a day of rest from labor, claiming that it could be profitably spent in looking after one's spiritual interests; and in this connection extending an invitation to all who were not engaged elsewhere to attend his Sabbath services.

After a few remarks by Toastmaster Spencer, the parting "Good night" word was passed and all were soon homeward bound.

Those in attendance at the banquet were as follows:
